pass resolutions at

Kgothakgothe

With the increase in population and the growth of Rustenburg Town comes a greater demand for electricity. New residential areas as well as new businesses need electricity. This, therefore, means that ESKOM, the South African public enterprise responsible for provision of electricity, needs to widen the supply to accommodate an ever-growing requirement. This calls for, amongst others, the building of new power stations and extension of power lines to reach new developmental areas.

ESKOM requested consent to have power lines placed through some of the Bafokeng Villages. In accordance with laws and customs of the Bafokeng Nation, the duly constituted general meeting, Kgothakgothe, has to pass the resolution to allow or not allow such crucial activity to take place in the land. The Eskom request was presented during the Kgothakgothe sitting, of 9 November 2013, to the community members who gathered at the Bafokeng Civic Centre.

The ESKOM's request for servitude, as presented by Adv. Mokate to the meeting, can be summarised as follows:

- ESKOM servitude for 3X132KV Powerlines in respect of power supply from Sun City (Ledig) to Manyane, affecting the remaining extent of Farm Styldrift 90 JQ and remaining extent of Farm Zandrif 82 JQ;

- ESKOM servitude for 3X132KV Powerlines in respect of power supply from Ngwedi Substation to SA Chrome, affecting Portion 1 of Farm Boshkoppie 104 JQ, Portion 21 of Farm Boshhoek 103 JQ and Portion 15 of Farm Frischgewaagd 96 JQ;
- ESKOM servitude 88KV Powerline in respect of power supply from Marang to Waterkloof Switching Station, affecting the Farm Turfontein 302; and
- ESKOM servitude for Bafokeng 788/33 Substation, affecting the Farm Doornspruit 106 JQ.

After a rigorous voting process by show of hand, Morafe passed a resolution to grant Eskom the permission to have power lines erected and pass through some of the Bafokeng villages. The numbers that voted in favour of Eskom's request was 771 while the number of Bafokeng that voted against was 11. Democracy dictates that majority rules and therefore Morafe gave consent for Eskom to proceed with its work for the improvement of electricity supply to South Africa.

Meanwhile, the Kgothakgothe was also utilised to provide the community with financial report and projections. A detailed article on financial report will be featured in the next JQ edition of this publication.

RBN Heritage Route (Phase 1)

The goal of the RBN Heritage Route (Phase 1) project is to produce a comprehensive heritage route map of all the heritage sites in the Phokeng area and to preserve the cultural and environmental heritage of the Royal Bafokeng Nation.

The Royal Bafokeng Administration's Research and Knowledge Management department is embarking on a project to facilitate the preservation of heritage sites in and around the Phokeng village. The realisation that there are a vast number of heritage sites (cultural, natural and politically-inspired) in the area that are at risk of destruction motivated the conceptualisation of this project. The project started on the 2nd of May 2013 and is expected to end on the 18th of November 2013.

The goal of the RBN Heritage Route (Phase 1) project is to produce a comprehensive heritage route map of all the heritage sites in the Phokeng area and to preserve the cultural and environmental heritage of the Royal Bafokeng Nation. It is hoped, as another potential spin off of this project, that the Bafokeng story will be packaged in such a way that it would inspire economic development in the area.

Site surveys and analyses will be conducted and site profiles will be created for each of the identified sites. Furthermore, visiting similar projects in and around South Africa, such as the Freedom Park, Mantsopa's Grave, and the Panorama Route forms part of the project activities – culminating in the production of the maps.

The maps will be available in two formats; an online application as well as a physical illustrated map. The maps will provide background information about each site, indicate routes and distances from one site to the next, and indicate the locations of public facilities, such as police stations, clinics, shopping centres, etc. that tourists and the general public might need to make use of.

Phase 1 of the project includes the map being distributed to schools and tourist information centres. The online application will be made available on Bafokeng.com website, the official RBN website. The map will be compiled in user-friendly, easy-navigation formats. Phase 2 will be rolled out in 2014 and will expand the map to all RBN regions.

A profile of Kenalemang Kgoroadira “Mama Kena”

Thojane Organic Farming started in 2009 with the main aim of training women and youth within Phokeng with their backyard gardens, so that their families could have access to and eat healthy home grown food using permaculture systems. This however never materialised and Mama Kena and Tommy (her husband and supporting half) had to venture into small-scale agriculture on their own.

A 10Ha derelict plot was afforded to them with a lease agreement from RBN. They had to start paying monthly rentals for the plot even before production had commenced. What is even more remarkable is that Mama Kena and Tommy had to use their own savings and pension funds, to remove all the old avocado trees, they also had to erect their own fence, acquire a tractor and implements, after which they had to prepare the ground and start producing using their own labour. In this way they provided employment for an additional five people.

Within four years Thojane managed to grow tomatoes, onions, brinjal (aubergine), butternut, calabash, merogo (sorghum), and herbs such as verbena, lemon grass, lavender, rose geranium, lerumo la madi and tlhonya.

Marketing all her produce locally she has not as yet experienced any challenges which she could not overcome. With the financial assistance of Rustenburg Local Municipality, DTI and Eskom, she has expanded her operation to increase the original 3 Ha under irrigation to potentially 7 Ha. A cold room and packaging facilities have been erected and at present there is a small tunnel.

The challenges facing this and other small-scale farmers are similar, but Thojane at present are experiencing the theft of their transformer, cabling and pump which is a major set-back. They are hopeful that the relevant bodies will soon help them to have all this replaced, as their current insurance policies do not cover this at all. The second and most probably the most important challenge experienced at Thojane is labour. Very few local people are interested in the labour intensive production of vegetables, and even if some show interest they leave for greener pastures once they have received the appropriate training. Identifying and employing reliable people to manage the operation while Mama Kena and Tommy are out delivering produce and or negotiating new markets are also areas of concern. Finally getting access to credit for small-scale farming operations remains a challenge, and the provision of amenities for labourers such as accommodation, toilets and electricity are an added burden.

But all of these challenges have not fazed Mama Kena, Tommy and the family, they still see vast opportunities, and are looking to diversify into agro-processing, organic mutton, broilers and egg production while also looking at improving their present honey production.

In conclusion Kenalemang Olga Kgoroadira won the 2013 BEST SUBSISTENCE PRODUCER in the emerging sector at the Department of Agriculture, Forestry and Fisheries, Female Entrepreneur awards on the 23rd August 2013 held at the St George's Hotel in Pretoria.

On behalf of the Royal Bafokeng Nation; “We salute you and congratulate you on your well-deserved award” You are most certainly another asset/resource that the nation has gained.

Letters

Thank You

A huge accolade is due to Shirley Mosete and Christine Boxall of Lebone II College of the Royal Bafokeng. These ladies had started collecting items such as toners which they knew would leak pollutants into the ground and water thereby threatening the health of communities and cleanliness of the environment. They also identified many old computers and printers, that were not economically efficient to run or broken, at numerous Bafokeng schools.

Through the WESSA Eco-Schools programme of which Lebone II has participated for two years, stock piles of electronic waste known as e-waste were identified at Fields College, Hoërskool Rustenburg and the Deutsche Schule Kroondal. The total e-waste was enough to make it worthwhile for Effortless Recycling in Johannesburg to come and collect the items free of charge.

Heavy metals such as mercury, lead, zinc and cadmium will be recovered from this e-waste and used to make new items. Without this company's intervention the redundant electronic equipment would have ended up in a landfill or worse yet dumped in undeveloped areas. Either way a pollution risk would follow as the substances of which the e-waste is composed of reacted to falling rain or oxygen and started to decompose. By ensuring the e-waste ends up in the correct place the Green Economy of South Africa is being promoted and a shining example has been set for all.

New gang around RBN

A new gang known as "CLC" [Cruel Liquors Club] has been identified. The members are said to be currently recruiting new participants who are mainly school children or unemployed teenagers. Meetings are held on a weekly basis at a place behind the shop in Sarone, where plans for the weekend are discussed.

The group consists of nine identified members from Phokeng who are mostly learners from Keledi and Bafokeng High School. Their ages range from 16 years to 22 years with a tattoo bearing the mark "CLC", on the upper arm. They use knives and pangas to rob people around Tshwara for money and cellphones, which they then utilise to buy liquor at local taverns.

Bankcard Syndicate in action

The syndicate operates at the Bafokeng Plaza and Andrews Garage at Kgale. The group uses a scamming device, camera and several fraudulent bank cards, which they attach to the ATM in order to obtain the each victim's pin number. These bank cards are then used for shopping at a variety of shopping outlets.

Following an operation, conducted jointly with the SAPS, a suspect was found in possession of a scamming device, cameras and seventeen bank cards, with pin numbers written on the cards and an amount of R5000.00 cash.

Drugs in our streets

The drug problem is increasing among youngsters. Drug users and suppliers increasingly use Heroin

("Nyaope") and crack cocaine because of its affordability estimated at R40.00 per "fix."

Drug addicts were interviewed and referred to social workers for further assessment. Sources of supply of drugs were revealed and arrests made. One suspect was found in possession of dagga weighing 53 grams, while a 25 year-old woman was also found in possession of dagga weighing 14g. Both were arrested and later fined. A case was opened at Phokeng SAPS.

Another joint operation, with the SAPS Boitekong, led to the arrest of a female Swazi national for possession of dagga. More than 90 kg of dagga, packed and bound in bags, valued at more than R20 000.00, was confiscated.

The suspect is a supplier around the Bafokeng area in villages including Mosonthwane, Kanana, Lefaragatlhe and Phokeng.

Up close with Henrico Botes

Platinum Stars is defying the odds and slowly winning the Nation's hearts, especially those of soccer lovers. They chase, they play and inspire. Moreover, they LIVE. A journey of success is underway and the Club celebrates daily accolades achieved by either the players or the club as a collective. Henrico Botes remains one of the oldest players in the team. Being nominated as the Sports Achiever of the Year, at the Namibia Sports Awards, last month surely makes him a Legend in the making. We took time and spoke with Botes, a warm and funny character he is.

Q: Briefly tell us your first memory at Platinum Stars, then Silver Stars?

HB: I joined the team after it won the 2006 edition of the Telkom Cup and also finished 2nd in the Absa Premiership. There were big expectations to maintain the same standard of the previous season, but we could not manage to meet it.

Q: The journey has been a tremendous one, with its ups and downs; can you take us through that?

HB: Yes, it was very tough growing up and I never in my wildest dreams could picture myself as a sports star. My faith in God has kept me going and all the glory goes to Him. The Club struggled to break into the TGop 8 after I have joined and I am happy to be still here and part of the turnaround.

Q: You are the current leading goal scorer for the team, in all its history. Were you working towards achieving that or did it just happen?

HB: No, it is not something I set out to achieve and it is by grace that I have reached this achievement. Personal glory is good, but the Team comes first. It will be fantastic to be remembered as the League Champions and I would feel honoured to play my part by scoring goals. I would like to thank the Club and the Royal Bafokeng Nation for giving me the opportunity, also my former colleagues at Platinum Stars and lastly my current teammates - the best group I have ever played with in my career.

Q: What is that you love about Platinum Stars?

HB: It is a team for the people and I love the family atmosphere at the Club.

Q: Your goals with the team?

HB: I would love for the team to be recognised as one of the best in South Africa, and to win the Absa Premiership.

Q: Who inspires you to work hard?

HB: God, the Almighty is my foundation; the support from my wife, family and friends.

Q: You are a husband; briefly tell us how you juggle your career with that role?

HB: I am first a husband then a sport personality. My wife is my rock and my biggest supporter. She keeps me grounded all the time.

Q: You are such a friendly and inspirational player. What keeps you going?

HB: I am fortunate to be where I am and I will never forget where I come from. Sport brings people together and makes them happy; I'm glad to give my contribution.

Q: How could you describe yourself in few words?

HB: Humble, happy, full of love, down to earth and a child of God.

Q: The Club achieved a golden crown in the previous cup and the adrenaline is building up to the semifinals of the next cup. What are your preparations and how are you willing to go out and represent the team?

HB: We want to continue doing well and we are confident that we will progress to the final against all odds.

Q: Who are you close to at Dikwena?

HB: I'm a team player and I'm close to everyone. Congratulations! Your warm heart has earned you success and we can only celebrate with you at Platinum Stars. All the best for the future! "Thank you for the opportunity and all the best to our supporters and the whole Dikwena family. Victory! We Resume!!!"

BIG BIG boost for local basketball

The Royal Bafokeng Junior NBA/WNBA Basketball Programme could not ask for a bigger boost than a visit by local coaches to the NBA Headquarters in New York. Four of RBN basketball coaches went on an exchange trip to the United States of America with the main objective of gaining more exposure on how the NBA runs its basketball affairs. The nine day visit to the USA, from the 2-10 November 2013, has helped in fostering the partnership between the RBN and NBA.

Basketball, one of the most successful sporting programmes at RBN, has gained mileage from this exchange trip as the 4-member delegation comprising coaches Franck Traore, Gladys Mathudi Disipi, Cornelius Mokgothu Ramosotho and Junior Mmoloke, will also transfer their skills to 36 other coaches working in the development of basketball for the RBN. "The transfer of skills from the NBA coaches to Bafokeng young coaches is an on-going process and an exchange trip to the US is crucial to further develop our coaches. It opens their minds and gives them a standard of excellence to shoot for when it comes to sports development", said Franck Traore, the leading coach.

The highlight of the trip was when the group had an opportunity to watch a highly competitive NBA encounter between Brooklyn Nets and Indiana Pacers in New York. Watching the games at University and College levels and having meetings with coaches will also go a long way in shaping the understanding of the game for our passionate local coaches. A day before the departure, one of the coaches, Junior Mmoloki was excited about the prospects of coming back with more skills. "With my combined 18 years of playing and coaching basketball, this trip is like a graduation to another level, because we will be able to learn new ways of improving the game for our junior players", said Mmoloki.

Following the success of the 2013 Royal Bafokeng Junior NBA/WNBA Championships, the basketball programme is indeed flourishing and will indeed go a long way in ensuring that Kgosi's vision of producing excellent athletes is realised. "The trip will help the coaches understand what it takes to become an accomplished basketball student athlete which will ultimately help with their development as coaches and mentors", said Traore. He also appealed to all young people in the Bafokeng area to participate in the programme, adding that basketball is not about size as many of us would believe. "Even shorter guys are needed in basketball. In fact, shorter players are perfect to play in positions where faster pace is critical", urged Traore.
